

Chintan-2019

...by the young scientists for the young scientists

November 18-19, 2019

Chintan, a symposium by the young scientists for the young scientists is aimed at providing a platform that will bring together enthusiastic young research scholars of twin institutes (NABI-CIAB) for discussing their exciting research outcomes, to exchange ideas and to promote collaborations for overcoming scientific challenges. This event is being jointly organised by National Agri-Food Biotechnology (NABI) and Center of Innovative & Applied Bioprocessing (CIAB) institutes.

We feel glad to invite you to be a part of our second NABI-CIAB joint institutional symposia, Chintan-2019 to be held during November 18-19, 2019 at NABI Auditorium. The symposium will cover the following thematic areas: Plant Molecular Biology and Biotechnology; Genes, genomics and synthetic biology; Secondary agriculture: from waste to wealth; Functional foods and nutraceuticals; Bioprocessing and biochemical engineering.

Abstracts are invited from the young researchers in any of the above mentioned five scientific thematic areas. Also, we will be inviting eminent speakers for the keynote/invited lectures during this meeting. We look forward to see you at.

We solicit the active participation of students of NABI & CIAB in the symposium and request to encourage other colleagues to participate and submit the abstracts at the earliest.

Abstract submission

Participants are invited to submit abstracts as per the format for one of the two categories: (1) Oral, or (2) Poster presentation on first come first serve basis. We have limited time slots available for oral presentations (6-8 per session). Maximum allotted time for each oral presentation will be only 15 min. All the abstracts will be reviewed and screened based on the subject matter. Usable space for poster board is 3 ½ feet x 3 ½ feet. All the abstracts must be submitted electronically to the respective session in-charge.

Who can apply?

Research scholars and postdoctoral fellows.
